

HackAday.com was kind enough to post few words about OSRC in their Blog. The same topic was actually posted once before when we just began working on the system and were just gathering ideas and sketches for the initial prototypes. A Perfect place to post about a great Open Source project such as the Remote Control System. With the versatile capabilities to Hack the system as you like, it once again shows how flexible OSRC can be. Hopefully this is just one of many places where the system will get its chance to shine.